Special Issue:

Responding to the Worldwide Attack on Personal Freedom

Civil liberties, constitutional guarantees, and economic vitality have throughout the year of 2020 been eviscerated all over the world. Freedom of speech, the right to choose health modalities, the freedom to travel, the right to assemble, and the right to engage in commerce have all been severely hobbled, and in some places, outright eliminated, all at the behest of a small group of individuals driven by levels of lust for wealth and power beyond the imagination of the average world citizen. Singing, celebrating, recreating, and seeking enjoyment of nature have all been roundly discouraged everywhere and even criminalized in some places. Further, the power-mad group seizing world control has plans to subject humanity to invasive methods of electronic surveillance, including the implantation of chips and other technologies into the human body for both monitoring and command purposes. All this has been declared necessary for public health, they say, as the result of a respiratory virus which has proven to be 99% survivable.

Meanwhile, the edicts of the ruling group and their government accomplices demand that citizens remain physically distanced from each other and that facial coverings be worn, thus impairing individuality and promoting faceless anonymity. Children are kept in circles and cubicles and inculcated with guilt for wanting physical contact with each other and relatives. New mothers are masked so that their newborns bond with the mask instead of the mother's face. Teens and young adults deprived of all social interaction and denied the hope of an adult future experience suicidal ideation in increasing numbers. Elders die alone in hospitals and nursing homes, some protesting they'd rather die of a respiratory disease than die of loneliness. All forms of domestic abuse and addictive behaviors are on the rise as persons worldwide struggle with house detention. Businesses have been shuttered and livelihoods devastated.

Those who publicly question restrictions are tased, beaten, and jailed. Corporate controlled news and social platforms ruthlessly control all content to conform to the demands of their multi-billionaire owners. Massive flows of financial wealth have been transferred from entrepreneurs to mammoth corporations as small businesses are ordered closed but huge chains allowed to remain open. The public is told that a killer virus is responsible for the eradication of life on planet Earth, while doctors with scientific information to the contrary are brutally suppressed by mainstream media platforms.

All these incursions on normal life and the hope for meaningful existence constitute an unprecedented assault on human nature and upon all the values which make life worth living. The combined effect of silencing scientific and political dissent worldwide and forcing unwanted substances into the bloodstreams of the public threatens to reduce the entire planet to a totalitarian state of terror, domination, and obliteration of all human significance. The single most important thing to do at this time, alongside the pursuit of a personal spiritual path, is therefore to face the nature of this attack on human values and to see it squarely for what it is.

Major media dismisses all these concerns as “conspiracy theory.” That’s their term for information which contradicts the official narrative. But there’s something else to consider. In the 1970s, young Washington Post journalists Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward were also branded “conspiracy theorists” for their continuing expose of the Watergate Scandal. For nearly three years, they were ridiculed, lambasted, scorned, mocked, and ostracized. Even so, their dogged research revealed an actual conspiracy in progress inside the U.S. federal government, a conspiracy which in the end came directly to light and resulted in the termination of the Richard Nixon presidency. This is but one example demonstrating that inconvenient truths are not always false simply because they don’t match the official narrative.

If you have not already, educate yourself on the present world power crisis by looking beyond the official narrative drummed into the minds of the public by corporate-controlled government figures and news platforms. The links below serve for that purpose. This is not an easy matter into which to look. Much reading, listening, and thought are required to get a grip on the full nature of the actual conspiracy against humanity unfolding in real time. However, if you value personal sovereignty, the right to think for yourself, the right to believe spiritually and religiously as your own conscience dictates, and the right to move about on the face of the Earth, now is the time to fully inform yourself of the plans and methods that power-driven forces seek to impose world-wide.

Knowledge is power. When the people of the world understand the nature of the attack, it will be thrown off. Gather ye knowledge, therefore, while ye may.
